Summary of reasons for decision:

The slick was submitted on behalf of the Secretary for Internal Affairs after a public complaint regarding its public display. Along with its DVD, the slick was being distributed as with a sexually explicit magazine, all placed inside a clear, sealed bag so that the front and spine of the slick were visible.

The front of the slick has a large, explicit image of a man and woman engaged in sexual activity, and sexually explicit text. The back of the slick has numerous sexually explicit images. The distributor had altered the slick by placing red circular stickers covering the woman's breasts and genitals, and obscuring the actual penetration. The sexual activity is still obvious, and the accompanying explicit text is not obscured at all. The slick is still explicit enough to require restriction to adults, and even if only the front were visible it would still be offensive to the public if displayed without conditions.

A restricted classification limits the right to freedom of expression provided by the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990, but it is a reasonable limitation to limit the access of sexually explicit material to an adult audience.
